The New Railroad.

The officials of the Chicago, Ft. Scott and Texas road and the Rich Hill railroad committee, were out looking over the road yesterday, no doubt selecting a suitable right-of-way. It is generally conceded that the road will pass through the east part of the city.—Rich Hill Herald.

We see that Macon City is working hard to secure the Chicago, Fort Scott and Texas railroad, which has been breezed considerably of late. We say, go ahead, there is nothing like being up and doing. This line runs through Chariton, Macon and Knox counties, and we believe with as good a wheel-horse as Brother Hudson of the Times at the helm, it no doubt will be pushed ahead.—Kirksville Democrat.

The "Prospectus" of the Chicago, Fort Scott and Texas Railroad company" has been received. It states that the company was incorporated under the laws of Kansas, January 2, 1887, and is authorized to construct a railroad of standard gauge and a line of telegraph from Fort Scott to Chicago, the line to pass through the counties of Vernon, Bates, Cass, Henry, Johnson, Lafayette, Saline, Carroll, Chariton, Macon, Shelby, Knox, Lewis and Clarke, in Missouri, crossing the Mississippi river at, or near Alexandria in Clarke county, Missouri, and thence by a practical route to Chicago; also through the counties of Bourbon, Allen, Neosho, Wilson, Elk, Cowley, Sumner, Harper, Barber and Comanche in Kansas, and then through the Indian Territory, New Mexico and Texas to El Paso. The company is chartered 99 years with an authorized capital $27,000,000. The prospectus says: "The company intends to build at least the first section of the Missouri division, as far north as Higginsville, 130 miles, and as much as possible of the Kansas division during this year, and the intention is to commence work simultaneously at Higginsville and Fort Scott." As to the second section of the Missouri division, (from the Missouri river to the Mississippi) the prospectus says: "The chief engineer has been instructed as soon as he can spare the time, to make a reconnaissance along the Missouri river, with a view to finding a suitable crossing. The officers of the company, as previously stated, are daily receiving communications from all cities and towns beyond the river, announcing the holding of public meetings, and a general desire to offer all reasonable inducements to secure the road. As soon as matters have taken proper shape in Kansas, they will turn their attention to this section."

The general offices of the company are stated to be at Fort Scott, Kansas, with New York offices at 15 Cortland street, New York city. The officers located at Fort Scott have been in New York during the past two weeks. When they return the committees appointed by the counties of Clark, Knox, Macon, Chariton and Carroll will likely visit Ft. Scott, and see if anything definite can be ascertained as to the probability of the road being built in this section, and as to when operations will be commenced this side of the Missouri river. Of this committee Clark has appointed one member, Hon. John M. Wood; Knox has appointed two, Hon. L. F. Cotter and H. R. Sparks, Esq., cashier of the Knox county savings bank; Macon has appointed two members; Chariton has appointed five members, and it is understood Carroll will be represented, as will probably Saline county.—Macon Times.

We advocate the building of another railroad through Chariton county, not because this is not already a desirable county in which to live, but that it may become more desirable on account of improved facilities for reaching a market for the products of as rich soil as can be found in any part of this, or other portions of this hemisphere. Were the Chicago, Fort Scott and Texas railroad built through this county it would afford us a choice between St. Louis and Chicago markets for our beef, pork and grain, of which we can produce as much in proportion to area as any county of this great state. The day for the taking of stock in "wild cat" railroads has ceased in Missouri. But something may still be done in encouraging laudable railroad enterprises in an individual capacity, as was done in Saline ten years since by private subscriptions and giving the right of way to the Chicago and Alton railroad. If our memory serves us aright some $200,000 were raised there for that purpose—a large sum surely. We have no idea that the people of Saline regret their subscription given to aid the enterprise. The completion of the road has since built the towns of Gilliam, Slater, Shackelford, Mount Leonard and Blackburn, whose aggregate assessed valuation amounts to no mean sum. Besides this that princess of county seats, Marshall, has grown to large dimensions all of which stand as monuments of the benefits derived from railroads. In our own county the result has not been so favorable though running through a longer series of years. While the railroads have built for us the towns of Salisbury, Dalton, Triplett, Cunningham and Sumner, which in the aggregate amount to something considerable, yet we believe our railroads have run too near our county lines to have been as much benefited as if some of them had been more centrally located. The Santa Fe, whose route is located near Rothville, and runs about 20 miles on Chariton soil, will, when completed, give a worthy people a chance to "spread out"—that they have for a long time desired but never before enjoyed. We hope the rumor that there is a strong probability of the machine shops and one division of the road being located at Rothville may ultimately prove a veritable truth, if so, a vast amount of material wealth will be added to Chariton county of which we will all be justly proud. In another column we publish extracts from the prospectus of the Chicago, Fort Scott and Texas railway which we have, at least, a glimmering hope may be induced to cross the Missouri river, or, near Frankfort, thence through the Bowling Green prairie, by Keytesville to Macon and other points to the Northeast Road, REFLECT! A full line of clocks, jewelry, etc., for sale cheaper than can be found in the country.

J. L. POTTS.

DEATH'S HARVEST.

Mrs. Elizabeth Stacy, nee Courtney, wife of Judge J. L. Stacy, died of consumption at the family residence three miles northeast of Keytesville on the morning of February 21st 1887. Deceased was a native of Randolph county, Missouri, was born Feb. 25th 1846, and was married at twenty years of age in Callao Missouri, to her sorrowful husband and in the following year moved to the farm upon which she died. Nine children were born of this union three sons and six daughters, seven of whom, two sons and five daughters survive their mother. In early life she embraced the religion of the Bible as a living truth, and till the close of her earthly pilgrimage exemplified the character of a true christian woman. Death did not steal upon her unawares. The unyielding character of her disease, and the affliction it entailed had given warning for several years of her approaching dissolution. Through all this her faith sustained her and gave promise that "Her suffering time would soon be over when she should sigh and weep no more." The day before she fell asleep in Jesus, her fond husband, with an almost breaking heart, knowing that her time had about come and desiring to have her dying testimony, inquired of her as to her prospects "beyond the river." She talked freely with him as her failing strength would allow, and gave every evidence that "Jesus was making a dying bed feel soft as downy pillows are." She was perfectly resigned to death, in fact was anxious to go, and exacted a promise that no more stimulants should be given her, which at best only could prolong her stay for a little while. A telegram had been sent to Kansas for her sister Mrs. Thos. Furrow to come, and hopes were entertained that she would arrive on Sunday's midnight train. The sufferer noticed the hour of low twelve and arousing at that time requested some wine that life might be prolonged till "Levy" should come, that she might see her once more. In this she was disappointed as in a few hours she passed away, and her sister did not arrive till Tuesday's noon train after the burial, the telegram not reaching its destination in time. A large concourse of neighbors and friends followed the remains to the cemetery on the 22nd ult, where they were gently laid to rest by the side of her mother and children who had preceded her to the glory world. Rev. T. S. Simral conducted the funeral services.

"Farewell mother, thou has left us, Here the loss we deeply feel, But 'tis God that hath bereft us, He can all our sorrows heal. Yet again we hope to meet thee, When the day of life has fled; Then in heaven with joy to greet thee, Where no farewell tear is shed."
